

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore., Nov. 25, 2014 / PRNewswire/ -- The Greenbrier Companies (NYSE: GBX) today announced the promotion of Jack Isselmann to Senior Vice President, External Affairs & Programs.

Isselmann joined Greenbrier in 2012 as Director of Corporate Relations and Communications. Since then he has taken on increased responsibility for other programs like our companywide security program. Last year Isselmann was promoted to Vice President, External Affairs & Communications in part to recognize his role developing and advancing Greenbrier's public safety efforts related to its Tank Car of the Future.

Isselmann reports to William A. Furman, Chairman and CEO and works closely with other senior staff members. A former partner at Portland-based law firm Tonkon Torp LLP, Isselmann also interfaces with our legal department on select compliance and regulatory matters. He continues management of Greenbrier's government and community relations, corporate security and corporate communications.

"I am pleased to recognize Jack's contributions at Greenbrier with this advancement," said Furman. "We recently completed a year of record performance, with more growth on the horizon and this has required everyone at Greenbrier to extend their range of responsibilities. As we execute our ongoing plans to expand, I appreciate Jack's willingness to accept new responsibilities and I look forward to his further contributions to Greenbrier."
